ASKS FOR ARREST OF "GUMSHOE" BURNS

GOOD REASONS WHY ASSESSOR HENRY P. DALTON SHOULD NOT BE CONTINUED IN HIS OFFICE

Despite Promises Lobbied With Legislature to Have Salary Increased; Has Segregated Personal Property From Assessments to Get Large Fees; Is a Corporation Man; Kept the Improper Men in Office and Has Been Criticized by State Courts for Official Methods

Henry P. Dalton should not be continued in the office of County Assessor for the following reasons:

In defiance of the pledges made over his signature when first a candidate, he has repeatedly lobbied around the Legislature to have his salary increased and prevent the perquisites of his office being cut off.

He has clung to the poll tax commission with desperate tenacity after the Legislature had passed an act intended to prevent the assessor of Alameda county from appropriating them as additional emolument over and above his salary. He defeated a suit brought by the county to compel restitution by finding a loop-hole in the law. Then he lobbied in the Legislature to defeat a bill to cure the defect.

Fat Fees Received

He has segregated personal property from assessments of realty that he might pocket the six per cent allowed for the collection of taxes on unsecured personal property. In this way Dalton has been getting from the county $200,000 a year from the county.

He has assessed large blocks of city realty belonging to corporations and rich speculators by the acre at a valuation far below that placed on surrounding property belonging to householders of moderate means. The court records show that Dalton assessed real property in the heart of the city for less than fifteen per cent of the value of the city of Oakland was compelled to pay by judicial order.

In many ways Dalton has unjustly discriminated in making his assessments.

He is charged on the sworn testimony with making deputies pay him a portion of their salaries—a felony under the laws of this state. See affidavit of Frank M. Shay for several years a deputy in Dalton's office.

He has given a confidential place in his office to Otto L. Hasse, who was indicted for presenting fraudulent claims against the county through the assessor's office, the said fraudulent claims being approved by Dalton or his chief deputy, Thomas Robinson Hasse, it was alleged charged the county bills for stationery never furnished which were really bills it was alleged, for female apparel and household furniture supplied on Dalton's private order. Hasse was tried and never acquitted of the charge, the jury disagreeing.

Blackburn's Charges

Dalton's unexplained financial dealings with Leslie F. Blackburn point to corruption, official prostitution, and assessments doctored for the benefit of certain corporations. Examples are furnished by the $2,000,000 cut in the assessment of the Contra Costa Water Company and omitting from the roll certain personal property assessments. Dalton has not accounted for the large sums paid him by Leslie Blackburn, who specifically charges that he gave Dalton the money to influence his action as county assessor, to wit: to reduce the assessments of certain corporations. The dates of the checks given Dalton by Blackburn bear out the accusation since they correspond with the time for making up the assessment roll and delivering it to the county auditor.

Is a Corporation Man

While Dalton is telling the public that he is opposed by the corporations, he is in fact the chosen candidate of all the big corporations including the Southern Pacific, the telephone company, and the gas and water companies.

Why are those corporations supporting Dalton when he is falsely declaring he is their enemy and that they are fighting him because he is honest?

Although Dalton was acquitted when he was indicted some years ago on a charge of signing a voucher for books which were never furnished his office and pocketing the money, he has never satisfactorily explained the transaction. He paid the money back to the county on the eve of trial and the verdict of acquittal was rendered because the jury entertained a reasonable doubt of Dalton's guilt.

Always for Himself

Dalton has systematically manipulated the assessment roll to serve his personal and political interests, and the interests of his friends and supporters, besides diverting thousands of dollars of the people's money into his own pockets. He was convicted by judgment of court of trying to unjustly and unlawfully withhold $1990 paid by the city of Oakland for a duplicate of the assessment of the city property.

Official Scandals

"These facts, coupled with the numerous scandals in which he and his office have been involved, prove that Dalton is an unfit man to hold the office of assessor. His methods of assessment are an injustice and imposition on the mass of taxpayers, are dishonest and offer a premium on graft and speculation."

Hence Henry P. Dalton should be defeated and an honest man elected to the office of assessor.

Thousands are seen unable to find shelter and they are exposed to rain and hunger. The question of feeding the starved people is causing apprehension. The vegetable and fish supply are failing and the stock of biscuits is only a month's supply. The water of the Sumida river is at most was the flood of the bridge. The climax of the inundation is expected tonight. The mountain flood in the neighborhood of Kiyohara has destroyed the bridge. The water is still rising and is stopping there. No fatalities have been reported so far.

Mrs. C. Schilling Sued Sealed Papers Filed

MRS. CARL SCHILLING, who brought suit for divorce today against her husband

Wealthy Man Made Defendant in an Action Brought by Beautiful Society Woman of This City

Suit was filed this morning in the Superior Court by Mrs. Constance Schilling against Carl Schilling, son of August Schilling, the mill and space man.

The suit comes after a long silence on the part of both principals and after a most disagreeable row that made public last May. The complaint is sealed and is silent on the face.

On the 11th of last May news of the strange relations of the couple were first made public in THE TRIBUNE. According to the story Mrs. Schilling left her home at 30 Waverly avenue on March 10 to go to the residence of her mother at 421 McAllister street, San Francisco.

The husband would not talk beyond admitting that difficulties had arisen the nature of which he would not divulge. He added that hopes of a reconciliation had been abandoned and denied strenuously that there was a second woman in the case.

Before Schilling had given his version of the affair to the public Mrs. Schilling declared that her husband had been absent from the city for two days having started for the East. She stated that she would not begin action for a divorce when asked if the husband had been any longer with her. She said she had not seen him since March 10.

A magnificent home on Waverly avenue was purchased and furnished elaborately and the pair lived happily until clouds appeared on their horizon. Soon afterward Mrs. Schilling is said to have come a realization that they could no longer live together happily and Mrs. Schilling picked up her personal belongings and departed for San Francisco home of her mother. Schilling after a lonely two days in the house where only a Chinese servant remained packed him-

Wright and a warrant will probably be issued for his arrest immediately on the return of United States District Attorney Platt in Nevada, who is acting here in the prosecution of Attorney Charles C. Snell, one of the witnesses in the Benson-Perrin land fraud cases.

The accusation is made by George C. Hunt, former inspector of the United States government lands. He alleges that Burns influenced Snell to testify falsely against Dr. Perrin after he himself had made a report in which he had stated that there was no evidence of conspiracy against him.

WOMEN READERS OF TRIBUNE ARE PROMISED TREAT AT LECTURE BY ANNETTE KELLERMAN NEXT MONDAY

Distribution of Tickets Began This Morning at All of the Offices of The Oakland Tribune; Every Woman Reader of the Paper Invited to Attend; "The Perfect Woman" Will Talk on Physical Culture and Answer All Questions

Annette Kellerman, the "Diving Beauty," whose perfect form has made her famous throughout the world as the most shapely member of her sex, is making preparations for her lecture to the women of Oakland which will be given in the Orpheum Monday morning at 11 o'clock, under the auspices of THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE.

Miss Kellerman plans to tell her feminine hearers how she became physically perfect and she will lay down simple rules by which her less fortunate sisters may at least improve their health and form, even though they do not attain Miss Kellerman's perfection.

Tickets Now Ready

Tickets for this lecture may now be had by all women free of charge at either the main office of THE TRIBUNE, or at any of THE TRIBUNE branch offices.

Miss Kellerman is a lover of women. She wants to see each member of her sex as nearly perfect as it is possible for them to be. With this end in view she will discuss all matters relating to health and beauty when she addresses the women from the stage of the Orpheum Monday morning. Every subject of interest to women will be touched upon by Miss Kellerman, and her own physical perfection is the best proof that she is correct in her theories.

Treat for Women

The management of THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE believes that Miss Kellerman's lecture will benefit many women, and for this reason has arranged this lecture by the women whom artists and sculptors have declared to be physically perfect.

Miss Kellerman believes in athletics. She also believes in a system of exercise which she has evolved herself and to which she attributes her good health and graceful curves.

Benefit of Athletics

In discussing athletics in general Miss Kellerman said to a TRIBUNE reporter this morning:

"It seems to be the general impression that whenever a girl or woman takes up athletics she abandons her feminine way and undertakes to look masculine, and others are afraid to take up athletics on account of muscular development. Now, I maintain that any woman can take up athletics and still remain feminine and artistic.

"Of course sometimes athletics tend to make a woman muscular, but with the right exercise this is easily overcome.

"Now the main point is, of course, exercise. Second is dieting. It seems remarkable that many women complain of their weight and can't seem to understand it. They live an easy life, eat and drink just whatever they please, regardless of the harm it does. I have always noticed, and there has never been an exception, that while in a restaurant, some women will eat and drink to excess.

Food Gives Strength

"Now, of course, no woman can be right physically if she doesn't choose her food. They seem to take it as a matter of fact, while they do not indulge that way, but go in more for exercise. The first thing a girl does after taking up athletics is to adopt a masculine appearance, walk and action. Now, I think that is all wrong, for no matter how much of an athlete a girl may be, she should

TRIBUNE IS NOW DISTRIBUTING TICKETS FOR ITS LECTURE BY ANNETTE KELLERMAN

THE TRIBUNE began this morning distributing tickets for the lecture it has arranged for Annette Kellerman to give in the Orpheum Theater Monday morning at 11 o'clock. The tickets may be obtained at the main office of THE TRIBUNE or at any of its branch offices at any time until just before the lecture, and there will be a TRIBUNE representative at the door of the theater to supply any one who has been unable to procure them. GEORGE W. LANGAN TO SUE S. P. FOR $100,000

Attorney, Injured in Railway Accident, to Begin Action for Heavy Damages

George W. Langan, the Oakland attorney, who was run down by a Southern Pacific train at Napa Junction recently, and suffering the loss of both legs, is preparing a suit which will be brought at an early day against that company to secure $100,000 damages. Mr. C. Chapman will act as his attorney in the case.

Mr. Langan is one of the best known lawyers in this section of the state. He has law offices with his brother-in-law, Mr. V. Mendenhall in the Bacon Block.

The accident by which Mr. Langan lost his leg occurred on May 2. He was waiting for the train at Martinez about 10 o'clock in the morning when the accident occurred.

As he stepped from the station platform to the train, the fast mail which was coming from another direction, struck him and he was knocked to the ground, and dragged for a long distance. For many weeks his life was despaired of as a result of the shock following the operation. He was brought to his home in Oakland and about three weeks ago had to undergo another operation. Neither the nor his attorneys this afternoon would discuss the case.

SLEUTH TO FACE TRIAL ON CHARGE

"Gum Shoe" Burns Accused of Subornation of Perjury in Big Land Fraud Case.

He told him off on an indefinite term without pay. Since then he claims to have secured incriminating evidence against Burns and desires to justify his report made back in 1906.

The evidence Burns was going to furnish the files of the land office when he came across Burns' report and sought to make a reputation for himself by exposing him.

The inspector says further that it was Burns' idea to confess himself in a letter of feeling in this community and thus lose secure employment.

That he succeeded in the plan is evidenced by his recommendation for participation in the so-called graft prosecution. He offered himself to all manner of schemes at a looking himself thoroughly detected by the entire community.

The testimony which was given to the grand jury was to the effect that he had told the grand jury that he would be to the government if he participated in the land deal. This Burns absolutely denied and sought to justify his statement by his testimony.

He further testified that Burns was a false witness, and that he was a false witness.

Inspector Hight stated that he would procure a warrant for the arrest of the man, now believed to be in New York, and immediately after the return to the city of Attorney General Platt.

never for get that she is a woman.

Miss Kellerman receives scores of letters from women who are anxious to emulate her and attain beauty at the same time. Miss Kellerman is unable to answer all these letters, and has welcomed the opportunity given her by THE TRIBUNE to speak direct to the women of Oakland. Cards on which questions may be written will be distributed to all women attending the lecture, and Miss Kellerman will answer any inquiry from any woman present. Cards will be distributed by girl members of the Four Fords, now showing at the theater. The theater will be in charge of women during the time that Miss Kellerman lectures and no men will be admitted.

ARMY CHIEFS DIRECT WAR AGAINST FLAMES

Leaders of Troops Make Coordinated Fight to Save Big Forests.

FIRE FIGHTERS ARE RUSHING WESTWARD

Thousands of Soldiers Surround Imperiled Sections in Montana and Idaho.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, asked the interior department and the forest service today to agree on a joint plan for the use of United States troops for fighting the forest fires in the West.

While the war department has been rushing soldiers to the aid of fire-fighters as quickly as possible, General Wood said officials of both services that the efficiency of the troops would be greatly increased if a plan could be decided which would prevent duplication of requests and clashes of authority. Such a plan probably will be presented to him today.

The War Department now has troops all around the fires in Western Montana and Northern Idaho, either at mobilization camps or at home posts. It is a joint plan of the two services to surround the individual fires will be used to fight them.

General Wood says the Interior and Forestry services will be given all the troops they may need during the emergency.

Two companies of infantry from Fort Wright, Wash., have been ordered to Wallace, Idaho, and one to Kallispell, Mont., to aid in fighting fires. The two companies now enroute to Glacier Park will be divided and one will be dispatched to Kallispell, giving that section two companies.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 13.—The immense forest fires now raging in the Coeur d'Alene district in Idaho, especially in the vicinity of Wallace, Kallispell and Mullan, are taxing the fighting resources of hundreds of the men almost beyond endurance and the task of subduing the flames is practically hopeless. Citizens of the three towns are in a wild state of panic and the dense smoke which envelops them causes intense suffering. Men and women are praying for rain and that there may be no change of wind.

A heavy pall of smoke hangs over the district. Ashes and embers are falling everywhere. Any change of wind from the west would bring the flames down the face of the hills overlooking Wallace, where dense frame buildings would burn like tinder in spite of all precautions.

FIGHTERS DRIVEN OUT

The fighters on Glacier creek were twice driven from the trenches yesterday by a raging tempest of flames. Forest fires in the district tell of serious losses to fire fighters in the way of camp equipment. The forest's camp at the Bullion mine has burned and all of the supplies have been lost and the forest's camp at Bird Creek met with a similar loss. Fires in the M. Ray district have made great headway.

A supply pack train of thirty-five mules, with a relay of thirty-five light-horsemen, were sent from Iron Mountain to Independence creek, at the head of the St. Joe, under the direction of Torrance. The forest's camp at Independence was burned and the train, removing packs and abandoned them and started back to Iron Mountain.

MAKE ESCAPE

Attorney Alcorn arrived from Missoula today, called on Sheriff Moffat at Wallace and asked to have the man released, but decided that he would have crossed into Montana and the river would be useless. The forestry office has had no word from Haines as to what became of the man and his horse.

TOWN THREATENED

Butte, Mont., Aug. 13.—Revered activity of a smoldering forest fire on Wolf creek near the northern end of a plateau lake and on the Pacific coast. The fire is killing the town of Kallispell with smoke and darkening the street. Strong winds are fanning to like a half-extinct conflagration. Among the difficulties to control the fire is the fact that the fire is burning along the crest side of Glacier Park and one at Park creek.

In the snowy mountains near Lewis-ton, back driving the forest fire is threatening the town of Kallispell.

Deer Lodge forestry officials have sent twenty men to fight the fire reported from German Gulch. Lightning, due Tuesday storm, started a blaze near the head of Beaver Dam gulch. It is now under control.

ELIENHAM, Wash., Aug. 13.—Forest fires raging four miles north of here have compelled several families to hurry with their household effects into this city. A force of 100 men is now in the flames and so far have protected the mills and farmhouses. Much standing timber and many thousand cords of shingle bolts have been destroyed.

ORDER TO TROOPS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, yesterday ordered seven companies of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, now at the American Lake maneuvers, camp back to Spokane, Wash., to assist in fighting forest fires.

The department of the interior made the appeal yesterday for the additional assistance.

Forest fires are reported raging in Montana, in the Flathead Indian country, and about Glacier Park. A mule pack train is being sent to Fort Missoula, Mont., from Fort Russell, Wyo. The soldiers now engaged in forest fire fighting and are flying to the aid of the forest fire. The mule pack train will follow the soldiers to see that they are properly fed.

FREEHOLDERS ADOPT MANY SECTIONS OF NEW CHARTER

Discussion Follows Subdivision Providing for Improvement of Streets; Mayor Is to Have Charge of Utilities Companies

Important subdivisions of the proposed charter were taken up by the members of the Board of Freeholders at their meeting last night, and, with a great many more adopted, others were referred to committees to look up. One subdivision in the Berkeley charter, which is being used as a model by the board, created no end of discussion. It follows: "To create, extend, amend, widen, straighten or closing of any street, lane, alley, court or public place in the city or over tide lands and lands covered by the waters of San Francisco Bay within the city, and to condemn and acquire any and all property necessary or convenient for that purpose.

"Whenever, in the judgment of the council or of the people, the cost and expense of any of the foregoing improvements is to be paid by assessment on private property, the general laws of the state of California in force at that time shall control, and all proceedings shall be in conformity thereto, except that all the duties of the commissioners and secretaries shall be performed by or under the direction of the commissioner of public works of the city, who shall receive no compensation therefor."

REFERRED TO LAWYERS.

This section, one of the most important to the city in the proposed charter, was read by Dr. George C. Pardee, who stated that he had studied it carefully and that while it was along the lines needed in Oakland he wished to have it referred to the city attorney to look up in conformity with some attorney member of the board.

He recommended John J. McDonald as the one to represent the board, and agreed to be present at the meeting and go over the matter with the lawyers.

SECTION ADOPTED.

"To provide for the lease of any lands now or hereafter owned by the city, all leases shall be made at public auction to the highest responsible bidder at the highest thereof for at least one week, stating explicitly the time and conditions of the proposed lease, providing that no lease is to be for a period of longer than ten years and giving the council power to reject any and all bids.

The question of the power of the city to lease lands and how to provide a method of taking up with the result of the following section, which closely follows one in the Berkeley charter, was adopted:

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The following report was handed in by the committee composed of Pardee, Robinson and Daly and was adopted:

"The mayor shall be charged with the general supervision of all public utility companies and of all other owning, controlling or operating public utilities, in so far as they, or any of them, are subject to municipal control, he shall keep himself fully informed as to their compliance in all respects with the law, and he shall see that the provisions of all franchises granted by the city are faithfully observed.

TO PROTECT DOGS.

At last the poor, unprotected canine, he he mongrel, cur or blue blooded bench dog, has found a municipal friend, and if the voters of Oakland agree with the members of the board of freeholders and adopt the new charter, which these members are working, Pido and Spot, Dowsy and Teddy will all be given an even break for their lives.

The dog question came up at the meeting of the board last night in the Berkeley charter, which was being used as a model, subdivisions 19 and 20 deal with canines and provide that no person who owns a dog and does not pay a license fee for him is subject to punishment by the courts.

"I don't like that section," said former Governor George W. Pardee. "I believe that any boy who does not own a dog is only half a boy, and I'm in favor of giving the boy and the dog both a chance."

"What this section really provides is that if some poor little boy, whose parents have no money, owns a dog and that dog is picked up on the street and a license fee is paid for it, the boy is arrested and sent to jail. That is wrong. We have in this city playgrounds which

The young actor was born and educated in Oakland, where he has many friends. Since leaving school he has traveled extensively and has had theatrical engagements in New York and in other large eastern cities.

He recently played with the Willard E. Mack stock company of Salt Lake City and a season with Robert Downey in his production, "Running for Governor." He made a success in the leading character in "Mrs. Templeton's Telegram," which was presented in the Macdonough theater last week.

the children greatly enjoy, yet they can't take dogs there. I believe the proper article to draw up will be one which will put it up to the dog catcher. Let him catch the dog first, and if the animal gets away, he wins. If the dog catcher captures him and his owners can afford to pay the license fee, then let them have the dog. If not let him be destroyed."

"I do not agree with that," said R. H. Chamberlain. "I think the regulation should be that the dog catcher should be following the humane and that they considered this dog question carefully."

"There is no doubt but the residents of Berkeley are humane," said John J. McDonald, "but they have been known to elect a board of education composed of men born with spectacles and false teeth."

The members of the board then agreed to stick with the dog and the boy, at least so far as their power and influence go.

The Man for Governor.

Under the searchlight of a malignant and bitterly personal campaign Alden Anderson's character and record shine with increased lustre. Not a spot or a blemish has been found on either. He has been faithful to every trust, public or private, and those having the best knowledge of how he has borne himself are his warmest friends, his most devoted supporters.

His public services have been of lasting benefit to the State. What he has done for the fruit-growing industry of California has won him the friendship and admiration of the orchardists and vineyardists of the State. His advocacy of improved, modern highways in the early inception of the good roads movement stamps him as a man of wisdom and progressive views.

Mr. Anderson has never made politics a profession nor a vehicle for private ends. He is a business man—a successful man of affairs in whatever field his activities have been displayed. As quarryman, fruit-grower, manager of the Fruit-growers' Association and banker he proved himself to be a man of capacity and integrity—trustworthy, energetic, enterprising and far-seeing. He has succeeded in all his undertakings, and while achieving success has stamped his personality on all with whom he came in contact.

The interest Mr. Anderson has taken in politics has been that of an upright, courageous, independent and unselfish citizen. He has contributed materially to the elevation of political standards, both as to men and measures. He represents a type that should be more prominent and active in the affairs of State. His sincerity, probity and ability have been forcible factors for good in whatever assemblage he has been thrown; have inspired confidence and given impulse to sound ideas and clean methods.

It is universally admitted that he is admirably fitted to fill the office of Governor. The only objection raised against his candidacy is that he is a loyal Republican—proud of the traditions and achievements of his party—is not present to the people with the endorsement of Chester H. Rowell. Mr. Anderson acknowledges no boss other than his conscience and convictions, serves no interest save that of the people, and scorns to appeal for votes by demagogic appeals to ignorance and prejudice. In short, he is the man to trust with the power and responsibilities of the Gubernatorial office.

The Invasion of Feidler's Grave.

Digging up the bones of Arthur Feidler for campaign material was the most dastardly deed done in this campaign. Feidler died before the shortage in the County Treasurer's office was discovered and hence never had an opportunity to explain or make restitution. But there never was the faintest suggestion that the County Clerk was in the slightest degree responsible, by contributory negligence or otherwise, for the shortage. The matter of the defalcation was rigidly investigated by the Grand Jury under direction of Hon. Everett J. Brown, then Assistant District Attorney and now Judge of the Superior Court, and could find no evidence that any other county office was even remotely responsible for the shortage. County Clerk Cook obeyed the law in every particular, and the Grand Jury that investigated the Feidler matter commended Cook's administration of the County Clerk's office in terms of warm approval. A defect in the law left the door open for the misappropriation of trust funds in the custody of the County Treasurer. This defect was cured by the Legislature at the session immediately following the death of Feidler and the shocking discovery that he was short in his cash. Assessor Dalton's press agent has cunningly represented that Cook was defunct in not obeying a law that was not enacted till after the defalcation in the County Treasurer's office was discovered. Arthur Feidler did not commit suicide, as Dalton's press agent asserts, but died a natural death. No suspicion attached to his office till he had passed away. Feidler has gone to a higher account than man's, and it was a shameful piece of business to publish the story of his disgrace to furnish the basis of a false and malicious campaign libel. Instead of talking about the Feidler matter, Dalton had better explain why Otto L. Hasse is holding a position in the Assessor's office.

Keesling for Lieutenant-Governor.

Francis V. Keesling is the only Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor Northern California has in the field and no better one could either be desired or chosen. It is not saying too much for him to assert that Stanford University, of which he is a graduate, never graduated a brighter young man nor one of more exemplary character. The high esteem in which he is held by his old college mates and the present Stanford student body and the faculty is that they are carrying on a whirlwind campaign in support of his candidacy.

Mr. Keesling is a lawyer of fine attainments and one of the rising and most promising of the younger members of the San Francisco Bar, and is held in the highest respect by all of the members of the San Francisco Bar Association.

There is no man in the State better fitted for the office that he seeks. He is recognized by every one who knows him as an energetic, capable, clean and square man. With a well-trained mind and splendidly poised temperament, Francis V. Keesling will preside over the deliberations of the State Senate as Lieutenant-Governor with dignity and fairness and he is equipped beforehand with a knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of the high office which few of those who have held it in the past have possessed in the same degree of perfection. The Republican party will honor itself by nominating him and the State will be fortunate indeed in his subsequent election.

The Good Roads League of Contra Costa county was reasonably disappointed at the result of the late bond election which involved the carrying out of an intelligent and well-planned system of county roads for the benefit of its people generally, and particularly for the benefit of the farmers whose adverse votes strangely defeated the proposition. But the league is by no means discouraged. It has taken hold of the subject again and this afternoon will inaugurate a new campaign under the joint auspices of the organization and the highway commission, by issuing a call to every voter in the county to attend the mass meeting to be held at Martinez. It is also planned to call a second election at an early date. In all probability the farmers of Contra Costa and the people of some of the towns on the eastern side of the county who helped to defeat the bond proposition at the recent election have undergone a change of heart and become convinced of the folly of their opposition. Contra Costa county cannot hope to prosper without better county highways than it now possesses.

A Ridiculous Dispatch.

A "special dispatch" to the San Francisco Chronicle says "the new leaders of the Republican party have planned" to eliminate Speaker Cannon, to retire Senator Aldrich and compel the resignation of Secretary Ballinger, and are conferring with President Taft to that end. All this has a familiar ring. It is but a repetition of the guff that has been coming out for months from insurgent sources. Who are the "new leaders of the Republican party?" The dispatch does not name them, and the inference the context of the dispatch leaves the reader to infer is that President Taft had abandoned the old leaders of the regular organization and had taken up with a new set of advisers hostile to Aldrich, Payne, Cannon, Hitchcock, Lodge and others who have led in the fight to preserve the integrity of the Republican party and continue the policy of protecting American labor and industry. But who are they? The dispatch contains no tangible facts. It merely says that the Republican party has a new set of leaders who have decreed that Speaker Cannon, Senator Aldrich and Secretary Ballinger must retire from public life, and are advising with the President as to the mode of procedure. The rest is what is denominated as "smoke" in newspaper offices. It is backed by nobody's name, sustained by no name and is nothing more than the expression of insurgent hopes. The "new leaders" are the insurgent kickers, and the program outlined is the familiar program of the insurgents. Senator Aldrich announced some time ago that he would not be a candidate for re-election. But that was before Bristow made his personal attack. Since that time the Rhode Island Senator has intimated that he might be goaded into being once more a candidate. If he is he will be elected. Neither the insurgents nor the President can prevent his coming back to the Senate if he so desires. As long as he sits in the Senate he will be a leader in that body. Speaker Cannon is going back to Congress no matter who opposes him, but if the next House be Democratic he will not be re-elected Speaker. If it is Republican by a narrow margin the insurgents can prevent his wielding the gavel again. Hence he will probably not seek the Speakership again. Secretary Ballinger has shown no disposition to retire from the cabinet, and President Taft shows no desire for him to do so. However, it is not improbable that Ballinger should leave the cabinet after the November elections if not before, but it is not likely that "the new leaders of the Republican party" will have anything to say about it.

The day after his return from Europe Rudolph Spreckels gave out a long string of platitudes about reform in the shape of an interview. But strange to say, he made no mention of Hiram Johnson and no word that could be construed as an endorsement of his candidacy. His silence on this point is significant. It is made all the more significant by rumors current in San Francisco that the closest friends of Spreckels are knifing Johnson and supporting Anderson. They are opposing Johnson, so the story goes, on the ground that his nomination will lose San Francisco the Panama-Pacific Exposition and spell the election of Bell to the Governorship. But where does Rudolph stand?

Tax Collector Barber's Great Record.

County Tax Collector James B. Barber has the distinctive honor of being absolutely unopposed in his candidacy for re-election. During the eighteen years he has held the office, sixteen of them consecutively, his administration of its affairs has been so satisfactory and so thoroughly free from criticism that all parties and factions in Alameda county have united to give him a clear and uncontested field as a reward for his honesty and efficiency as a public officer. "Honest" James B. Barber will thus be retained as County Tax Collector by a unanimous vote of the people.

It is a rare compliment to pay a public servant; but Mr. Barber has fairly and justly earned it. It is, in fact, a matter of public gratulation that it should have an officer in a highly responsible branch of its service whose long official record does not furnish an excuse to warrant the suggestion of a change or the nomination of a rival candidate made for strictly partisan reasons. And in the case of Barber no other name for the County Tax Collectorship has been thought of. His nomination is unopposed by unanimous consent. Indeed, no other person in the county could have been considered as even a remote possibility.

Barber has demonstrated the fact that a public office of responsibility can be conducted so honestly and efficiently that the most daring critic can find no fault with it and that the people, irrespective of party ties, unanimously insist upon his retention in his position. Every Grand Jury has made a searching investigation of the administration of the County Tax Collectorship during Barber's tenure of it and every inquisitorial body has highly commended him for his integrity. He has made an unprecedented record, and it is immensely gratifying to the county that it has an officer in its employ with whose services it is unwilling to dispense.

Twenty Years Ago Today

Markham was nominated in the Republican State convention this afternoon in Sacramento for Governor. The victory was achieved in the first ballot. That ballot gave Markham 224 votes and then a stampede to change votes to him began, giving him a majority. The vote of the delegates from Alameda county was: Markham 10, Morrow 38, Chipman 1, Shippee 1. The vote of Contra Costa county was 9 for Morrow.

Ex-Mayor Davis of this city placed W. H. Jordan of Oakland in nomination for the position of Governor, but the convention at Sacramento adjourned until 8 o'clock tonight without taking action in the matter.

There is a murky gathering around the political horizon and the fog this morning seems but a reflection of the political aspect. Little clouds are gathering in the sky and settling around the political headquarters for Sacramento is not the only place in this wide State where the enterprising wire-puller and the festive log-roller is at work for the good of the dear people.

OVERWHELMING ENDORSEMENT FOR COUNTY CLERK JOHN P. COOK

Thousands of Citizens, Merchants, Bankers, Professional Men, Labor Leaders and Farmers Commend the Able Administration of His Office

County Clerk John P. Cook is receiving a popular testimonial to his zeal and fidelity as a public officer that far outstrips any similar endorsement ever given in this county. It comes from all ranks of society and all sections of the county. Those best qualified to speak with knowledge of Mr. Cook's efficiency and integrity give him the highest commendation.

The members of the Alameda county bar, who know by personal experience whereof they speak, endorse Mr. Cook's administration in the very highest terms. Bankers, merchants, capitalists, physicians, real estate brokers, artisans, mechanics and farmers all join in the commendation.

During the last month over fifteen thousand citizens of the county have testified in writing to his efficiency and worth and have signified under oath their intention to vote for his re-election. It is a high compliment for a county official to be given an endorsement so unstinted and overwhelming.

Mr. John P. Cook has made an admirable public officer. During the two terms he has served as County Clerk he has displayed efficiency of a high order, strict integrity, and scrupulous fidelity to the interests committed to his charge. The affairs of the County Clerk's office have never been administered with better method and in stricter obedience to the law than under Mr. Cook's direction.

The courtesy, diligence and efficiency of his office force speak in the highest terms for his executive talents. The public interests are best served by keeping men of proved capacity and integrity in administrative positions.

Mr. Cook is a candidate to succeed himself in the County Clerk's office. In view of the excellent record he has made, we take pleasure in endorsing his candidacy and recommending him to the suffrage of the voters.

LAWYERS

We, the undersigned, attorneys-at-law, practising before the Superior Court of Alameda County, and having an intimate acquaintance with the County Clerk's office, take pleasure in commending and endorsing the administration of that office by its head, John P. Cook.

Through his efforts the complicated work of the office has been thoroughly systematized to such an extent that business is handled most expeditiously. His entire force of deputies are capable, obliging and uniformly courteous to all having dealings with the office. In short, we know of no public office today that has attained a higher degree of efficiency than that of John P. Cook, County Clerk of Alameda County.

Realizing the importance of this office not only to attorneys but as well to their clients and to the general public, we therefore, irrespective of our political faith, heartily endorse the administration of John P. Cook as County Clerk of Alameda County:

A black and white illustration featuring two ornate oval frames, each containing a portrait of a woman. Between the frames stands a woman in a long, light-colored dress with a dark belt and a large, dark, pointed hat adorned with flowers. She holds a long, thin object, possibly a cane or a parasol handle, and is surrounded by a large bouquet of flowers.

MISS CORINNE MACLISE, who announced her engagement this week to Mott D. Fuller of Bakersfield. —Seariz Photo

Many things may be said regarding the duty of a patroness. In England it means a great deal. An English woman of the aristocracy who gives her name as supporting any worthy

With the London sea on one side, Americans have lost no time in leaving the historic capital and hurrying onward as is the way of American. The latter are following the English lead in the matter of sports and rich Americans have gone to Scotland for the grouse shooting and salmon fishing to Cowes for the yachting, to the Continent for the water gun play and everywhere for motor ing.

SOCIETY NEWS of the WEEK

project gives also substantial assistance. She usually goes into the cause with all her heart, and with great enthusiasm, and her friends contribute their quota of interest.

Too often in California patronesses contribute only their names. They like to pose in the papers as grand dames, and they enjoy seeing their names on many lists. But that is all they really amount to.

It has often happened that women have been patronesses at charitable affairs who have never bought a ticket in aid of the charity and who have not even had the grace to appear on the eventful evening.

So it is now a very doubtful proposition whether a list of patronesses is in any way helpful, that is, if the financial side of the charity is to be dependent on the enthusiasm or efforts of the patronesses.

CLUBS PROMISE MUCH IN WAY OF DATES.

The many clubs promise much in the way of interesting dates for the autumn, and it is certain that many distinguished people will be in Oakland during the coming social season. President Wheeler announces that ex-President Roosevelt will be the speaker at Charter Day. President Roosevelt's visit to the coast was six years ago, at the graduating exercises of the University, exercises held for the first time in the beautiful Greek Theater.

The Oakland Club announces the coming of Ellen Terry, one of the most successful actresses of modern times, and a very charming woman also.

Among the organizations of uplifting benefit to the city is the Oakland Free Library, which is representing some of the advanced methods advocated in the East. The library, of course, is the literary center of the city, and it is rapidly under the able direction of Librarian Greene, becoming an art center as well. Mr. Greene has accumulated an exceedingly fine collection of copies from the old masters and at intervals they are hung in the halls and on the walls of the smaller rooms connected with the library. These art exhibits have continued most of the summer, and there is a very general request that they may be repeated, now that the students of our city have returned from vacation days, and are again at work. The collection of Madonnas was exceedingly fine. There is a good Egyptian exhibit, and there are effective copies of Caravaggio's pictures, as well as of those of other artists of the Barlizon school. It has been suggested that the collection be transferred to the Ebell Club some time this autumn, where it would have a better setting, and perhaps Mr. Greene might be induced to give one of those helpful addresses in art, which would lead the way to an appreciation of artistic values in public school work.

Each school might easily have an exhibit similar to that of the free library, and it might be remarked that Mr. Greene very generously offers to loan his collection to classes or schools which can make use of it.

MILL VALLEY IS POPULAR THIS YEAR.

Mill Valley, and especially Blithedale, have been very popular this year, for the cottages are planned along attractive lines.

The J. H. Costigans, who lived so long here, have not come to Oakland for several seasons now, preferring to spend the entire year in their country home at Mill Valley. The dances at Blithedale have been very popular social affairs this season, and among the interesting girls who have been in attendance at the Blithedale dances are the Misses Doris Walshe, Florida and Natalie Hunt, Marian Martin, Amalie Simpson and Susan Hall.

AN INTERESTING RECENT ARRIVAL.

Among the many interesting recent arrivals in our city are Mr. and Mrs. St. Melvor, who have taken up their residence at the Peralta Apartments. The Melvors have many years been prominent among the large land owners of Alameda county, having entertained very extensively in their large country place near Mission San Jose.

Stephen Melvor, who is the only son of the family, is to engage in business in Oakland, and with his bride will reside here.

INTERESTING TEA AT THE DAVIS HOME.

One of the most interesting teas of the week was given at the Davis home at Piedmont on Thursday, when Mrs. Davis entertained in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Burgess, who is visiting her. Mrs. Burgess has come from her Eastern home to spend part of the summer in California.

Doctor and Mrs. Davis are well known in Oakland, having made their home on Jackson street several years ago. Mrs. Davis' guests included many of her old time Oakland friends, as well as many of her Piedmont neighbors, and the tea was one of the most delightful social events of the week.

IN HONOR OF THE BRIDES-ELECT.

The first entertainments we are to have this season will be in honor of those brides-elect whose weddings are to be dates of the autumn. Among the first of the weddings will be that of Mr. Frank and Miss Frances Williamson, which will take place at the Willard Williamson home at Claremont.

Other weddings scheduled for later in the year are those of Mr. William Childs and Miss Helen Dornin, and Mr. Read and Miss Margaret Ritchie. The smart sets of Paris, London and New York all favor the noon wedding, and a church wedding along brilliant lines, where that may be possible. The bride's attendants are often very young girls, and sometimes the wedding procession is made up of children, relatives of the bride and groom. A church wedding at high noon is rather trying to the bride, for a wedding costume along conventional lines does not light up well, but the picturesque effects possible in hats and bouquets for the bridesmaids makes of a noon wedding a picture full of gorgeous tones. In America we have the wedding cake served in minute quantities, in small boxes, very expensive, and which nobody ever keeps. In England they still cherish the enormous wedding cake.

Buzzards in Oxford street, London, is not familiar to Americans, but it has an interest of its own, for it has made wedding cakes for royalty for many years, and indeed the American has little idea of what a royal wedding cake should be.

There they stand, six or seven feet tall, each ornamented with almond icing, inches thick, with coats of arms and heraldic devices, and bearing on top a sugar temple surmounted by doves. The account of a fashionable wedding in the English society papers usually closes with the line, "Cake by Buzzard," for Buzzard in London makes most of the wedding cake that is served in England.

But America has developed "the bride's cake," in which are baked a ring, a penny, a thimble and other symbols. A wedding will surely follow to the young person who is lucky enough to receive the ring. And a fortune lies in wait for the young person who receives the penny. And, alas, for the girl who finds the thimble in her piece of cake. And it might be remarked in passing that the thimble is not often now baked in the cake, for it is usually a matter of embarrassment to the young girl who receives it. It is not a bit of a joke to her.

Of course there are weddings of many kinds, but that bride will have the jolliest wedding who invites the guests who really care for her. It must be confessed that a wedding list is made up often with an eye to wedding gifts, and old friends are rather sore at heart and disappointed at being left out. And wedding gift or two can never compensate for the loss of a true friendship.

All the world loves a wedding, so the prominent weddings of the season will be the most important events of the coming autumn days.

THE BOHEMIAN CLUB CONCERT.

The event of the week across the bay, musically at least, was the Bohemian Club concert which packed the Van Ness Theater at a special matinee on Tuesday afternoon. The program was exceedingly interesting, including, as it did the most important music of the links of last week and some numbers from preceding links, especially the prelude to "St. Patrick of Tara," the successful jinks of last year. There was also a vocal solo, "St. Anthony's Sermon," with an elaborate orchestral accompaniment, and a one picture of St. Tamalpais—a descriptive thing—both written by Herman Perlez. A great sigh of disappointment passed over the audience like a breeze when President Melvin announced that owing to a cold David Bispham would be unable to sing his two numbers and to give the recitation with orchestral accompaniment of the "Tar Pool." The omission of the recitation was a particular disappointment because the story of the "Tar Pool" is a particularly dramatic thing, recounting as it does the story of a murder in the lonely primeval woods as seen through the eyes of a little boy. The murdered man was his father and the murderer was his uncle, and it is another rendering of the story of Cain and Abel in these strange far-off days. The recitation of this number was one of the most picturesque features of the late links. Understudies sang the vocal numbers, but there was no understudy for this bit of dramatic description and it had to be omitted. Henry Perry sang the "Flint Song" with which Bispham made such a hit at the links. Mr. Perry was in excellent voice and sang to great applause, but Bispham is, of course, a great actor, even more than a singer these days, and it was his dramatic fervor that the audience wished to hear. The soprano who was to have sung the part of the cave woman had also succumbed to summer fogs and Miss McCoy sang her role at the last minute—sang the haunting theme of the love melody very sweetly. Ernest McCandlish sang the part of "Long Arm." Both this love duet and the "Flint Song" were encored.

The music is by far the best that McCoy, who has been prolific in jinks music, has ever written. The "Flint Song" is barbaric, somewhat after the Strauss new school method, but the mating song has a dreamy, poetic quality that reminds one somehow of Wagner's "Spring Song"—not that the two are at all alike, but simply because both speak of love in the morning of the world.

Every box in the theater had been sold by Joe Redding at an exciting auction in the grove and all had brought handsome premiums. The balcony was packed as well as the lower floor, seats all over the house being the same in price. Among those who were present were Mrs. Thomas Porter Bishop, Mrs. Lane Leonard, Mrs. Johns, Miss Mary Morse, Mrs. Henry K. Field, Mrs. Shotwell, Willard Barton, Mrs. Walter MacGavin, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fry, Mrs. J. Walter Scott, Mrs. M. J. Layman, Miss Layman, Mrs. Lucie May Hayes, Mrs. Ella Hotelling, Miss Jane Hotelling, John Housman, Mrs. Mary Austin, Professor H. Morse Stevens, Wallace Sabin, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Dunn, Russell Field, H. Cool, Miss Dorothy Hume, Mrs. Charles Sawyer, Edgar Peixotto, Mrs. Harry Knowles, Miss Bruntsch and Mr. and Mrs. Amadee Joullin.

Mr. Richard Hotelling entertained a party, among his guests being David Bispham.

DINNER FOR DAVID BISPHAM.

David Bispham left for his home in the East on Wednesday morning, having come to California especially for the Bohemian Club jinks and the succeeding concert, at which it was the greatest disappointment for him that he was unable to sing. On Tuesday evening Mrs. Bispham was made the guest of honor at a large dinner at the Bohemian Club, Mr. Richard Hotelling, who also took a leading part in the "Cave Man Jinks," being the host. Thirty-five men sat down at a beautifully decorated table and discussed one of the club's most elaborate and delicious menus. At the close of the gustatory part of the dinner one of the rarest evenings of Bohemian fun and frolic ensued. Everything was impromptu, but everything was deliciously funny. There were amusing speeches, songs and dances, to say nothing of athletic stunts which took place right in the middle of the space in the T-shaped table. The honored guest was presented with a beautiful bronze tiger by his host, the modern tiger being the remote descendant of the sabre-toothed one which is supposed to have roamed at the time the "Cave Man" inhabited the forest. Mr. Bispham responded to the tiger in a graceful speech. Among the men at the dinner were Henry Hadley, Wallace Sabin, Henry Melvin, Frank Deering, Charles K. Field, Mr. McCoy, Charles Conlisk, H. J. Maginety, Harry Francis, Edward H. Hamilton, Russell H. Cool, John Housman, Amadee Joullin, Mr. Russell, William Gray Harrison, Edgar Peixotto and Frank Mathieu.

INFORMAL LUNCHEONS OF THE WEEK.

The Palace and St. Francis grills are full of informal luncheon parties every day, with a young matron or a girl entertaining a few of her women friends who happen to be in town from the country places to do a little necessary shopping. Among those who entertained this week was Miss Helene Irwin, who ran up from Santa Barbara in Miss Jennie Crocker's private car to greet her friend, Mrs. Harold Dillingham, who accompanied her mother, Mrs. Nellie Hyde-Smith, home from the Hawaiian Islands and will pay a brief visit to her sister, Mrs. Baldwin Wood. Miss Irwin and Mrs. Dillingham, the former Miss Hyde Smith, are the warmest of friends and Miss Irwin could not wait until September, when the Irwin party is to return to San Francisco, to greet her friend, so she ran up from Santa Barbara for a day or so to see Mrs. Dillingham. Miss Irwin's other guests were Mrs. Baldwin Wood and Miss Martha Calhoun, and the quartet had a merry time telling each other of all the summer's happenings. Miss Irwin will return to the Potter in a few days and will remain there with Mr. and Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Ivers until the beginning of September, when the family will return to San Francisco and will reopen their house there.

Another luncheon hostess this week was Miss Enid Gregg, who is busy entertaining her friends in small groups since her return from Europe.

Mrs. Walter Martin also entertained last week, among her guests being Mrs. Horace Pillsbury, who has just returned from Santa Barbara, where she spent some time with Miss Edith Pillsbury at the Montecito home of the Pillsburys.

PICTURES IN THE MIDDLER.

Mrs. A. C. Pillsbury, whose picture is in the Middler, has returned to Oakland from a six weeks' visit at the Yosemite and a delightful sojourn in the high Sierras, where Mr. and Mrs. Pillsbury were accompanied by a congenial party of friends. Mrs. Pillsbury will leave September 1 for a trip to Monterey.

Miss Corinna MacLise, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James MacLise, announced her engagement to Mott D. Fuller at an elaborate luncheon at which the young bride-elect entertained at the family home in Vernon street in honor of Miss Grace Jacks. Miss MacLise is a member of the Saturday Night Club and has taken a prominent part in the affairs of the Prelude Club. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Fuller of Michigan. He is interested in oil fields near Bakersfield. No date has been named for the wedding, which will be an event of the late fall.

Mrs. Russell, wife of Lieut. Russell, formerly Miss Gladys Courvoisier, whose marriage was an event of a summer ago and who has been stationed in the north, is contemplating a visit to her old home, where she has a wide circle of friends who will make her the motif for much entertaining.

It no means a new character to Miss Jewell, or she is interpreting it and with the most convincing evidence. It is a character that she has seen in the daily lives of those who have to do Miss Jewell's work in the character in the highest terms and to commend it as being able to make her interpret it for the audience in a better way than most of the students in the world had done. For it is said that Miss Jewell interprets Spinoza the unfathomable woman becomes rare and she is almost that smiling and there is a feeling of calm stillness when she makes the man she loves for the day let her little say.

Canada's Famous Mounted Police, Long the "Watch dogs of the Wilderness," Gradually Are Giving Way Before the Onrush of a Peaceable Civilization, and Soon, Like Othello, Are Destined to Find Their Occupation Gone.

INSPECTOR CHURCH

Canada's great northwest civilization is marching with giant strides. And before its advance foot will disappear one of the dominion's peculiar institutions—the Royal Northwest mounted police.

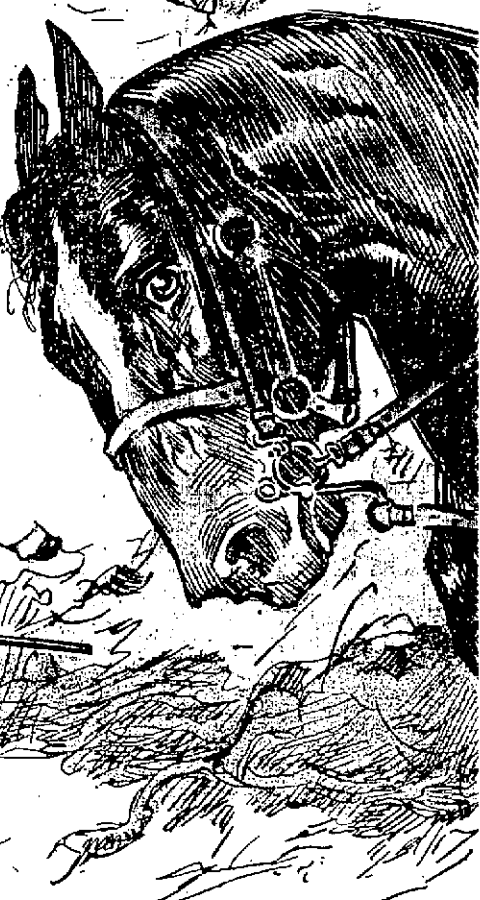

The word has gone out from Ottawa already that these frontier outposts will not be needed much longer. Those "sentinels of silence," as Agnes D. Cameron has called them in her writings, will have no place in an order of things where silence no longer reigns, where the voices of settlers' children break the stillness of the prairie, and the whistle of locomotives is heard far up into the north.

To be sure, there has been a feeling of protest from mining camps, fur trading posts, and agricultural settlements, where as nowhere else the services of the mounted police are appreciated at their true value. Ottawa has heard the voices from the west, but the government recognizes, and the people of new Canada also recognize, that a new day is dawning. The wilderness has been deposed and a new monarch is to rule.

For there is small room for the stern discipline bound autocrats the constables have been, once established communities fill the land. Local laws and ordinances and local officers to enforce them will cover the ground. These mounted police, representing Britain's far-reaching arm of justice, must retire before the orderly administration of law the civilized establishes wherever its flag is unfurled over town and hamlet.

These men on horses, wearing red coats, knowing no fear, and riding with all the pride of king's messengers, became a necessity in the northwest soon after 1870. Before that year the Hudson's Bay company was the dominant power in the vast region known as "Rupert's Land." The company giving up its rights to the prairie northwest, the dominion authorities found before them the problem of preserving order, protecting the few isolated settlers and miners, and keeping each Indian tribe within its own borders.

So the Royal Northwest mounted police came into being to achieve this task. It is true the men are mounted, but a large part of their duty calls them from their horses. They have to be canoe men and snowshoe experts in winter and summer in the labyrinth of forest, plains, lakes, and rivers found in the land given into their keeping. In time their numbers have come to reach nearly 1,000, each man having a "beat" that gives a new meaning to the word.

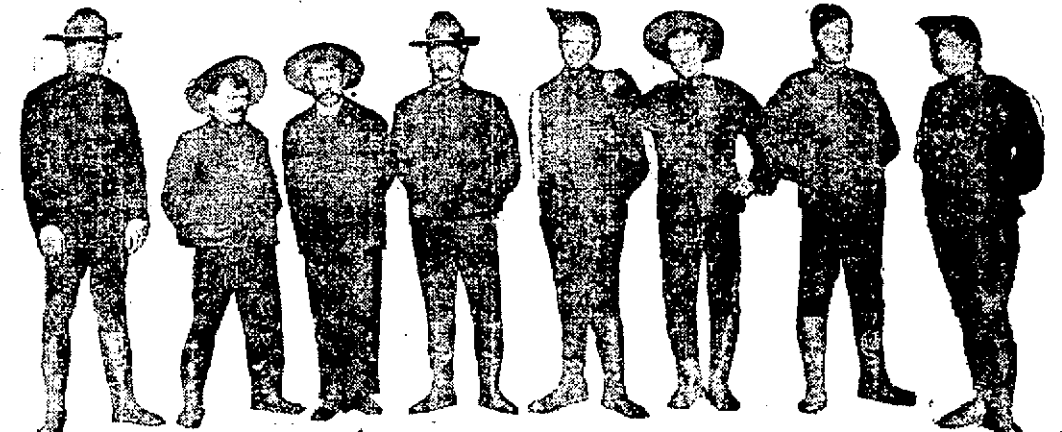

"DROP THAT GUN!!"

"I left Chipewyan with the lunatic Dec. 17, taking an interpreter and two dog teams. After traveling five days through slush up to our knees we made Fort McKay, on the Athabasca river. Owing to the extreme cold both the patient's feet got frostbitten. I bought some big moccasins for him and wrapped him well. I traveled without accident to the twenty-seventh, reaching Big Weechume. Here I had to lay off for a day to get a guide, as there was no trail. I made Lac la Biche on New Year's eve and secured a team of horses to carry me to Fort Saskatchewan; on Jan. 7 I handed over the charge."

Records Give Only Bare Facts.

The records in the case show that the demented man recovered his reason in the hospital and set out back toward the north pole in due season. It was different with Corporal Folley. The hardships and exposure of the trip so wrought on his mind that he in turn had to be sent to an asylum. When he was discharged, his faculties restored, he was given a long furlough. When the period of his service expired what did he do? Why, he re-enlisted. That is the Northwest police for you.

Of all the cases that have come under the notice of students of the north, one, told by Miss Cameron, appeals most to the imagination. An Indian fur trader way up in the Arctic circle abandoned his little baby on an island, leaving the infant to die in the silent cold of the polar wilderness. The police learned of it. The police learn of everything in that great northwest. A trooper was detailed to capture the Indian and bring him to justice.

"WATCHDOGS OF THE WILDERNESS"

The trooper went alone far into the twilight zone of the Arctic and found his man and put him under arrest. There was no patrol wagon to call by telephone; no railroad train on which to place a manacled prisoner and ride by his side in comfort to the jail. There was just one lone trooper, representing the might of Britain and the right, armed and determined, and there was one savage who knew the wilderness as his mother and who was fully conscious that unless he broke away from his captor death or imprisonment for life was before him.

The redcoat triumphed, too. He bound the arms of the prisoner and secured a canoe. Then the two men, the savage sitting in front of the craft and never permitted to look behind him, the British justice in the person of the trooper seated behind him, paddle in hand, began a 1,200 mile journey up the Mackenzie river. Day after day the trooper drove the canoe against the current with the silent charge before him and the wilderness encompassing them.

Arrived at the end of their river journey, the policeman and the Indian crossed Great Slave lake, went on past Smith rapids, Athabasca lake, and the river, and ultimately reached a railroad, by which they went to Regina. The Indian is serving a life sentence today.

RECRUITS FOR THE ROYAL NORTH WEST MOUNTED POLICE

Members enlist for five years' service, and so great are the allurements of the wilderness and of the position that they generally return for a second term. To be eligible a man must be between 22 and 40 years old, of sound constitution, standing at least five feet eight inches high, and weighing not more than 175 pounds. He will not gain in weight, either, in the service. He must not be married. He gets 60 cents a day during the first term of enlistment, with a higher rate granted before him for longer service or for winning a promotion—a rate running up to $1.25 or more.

Every Class Represented in Service.

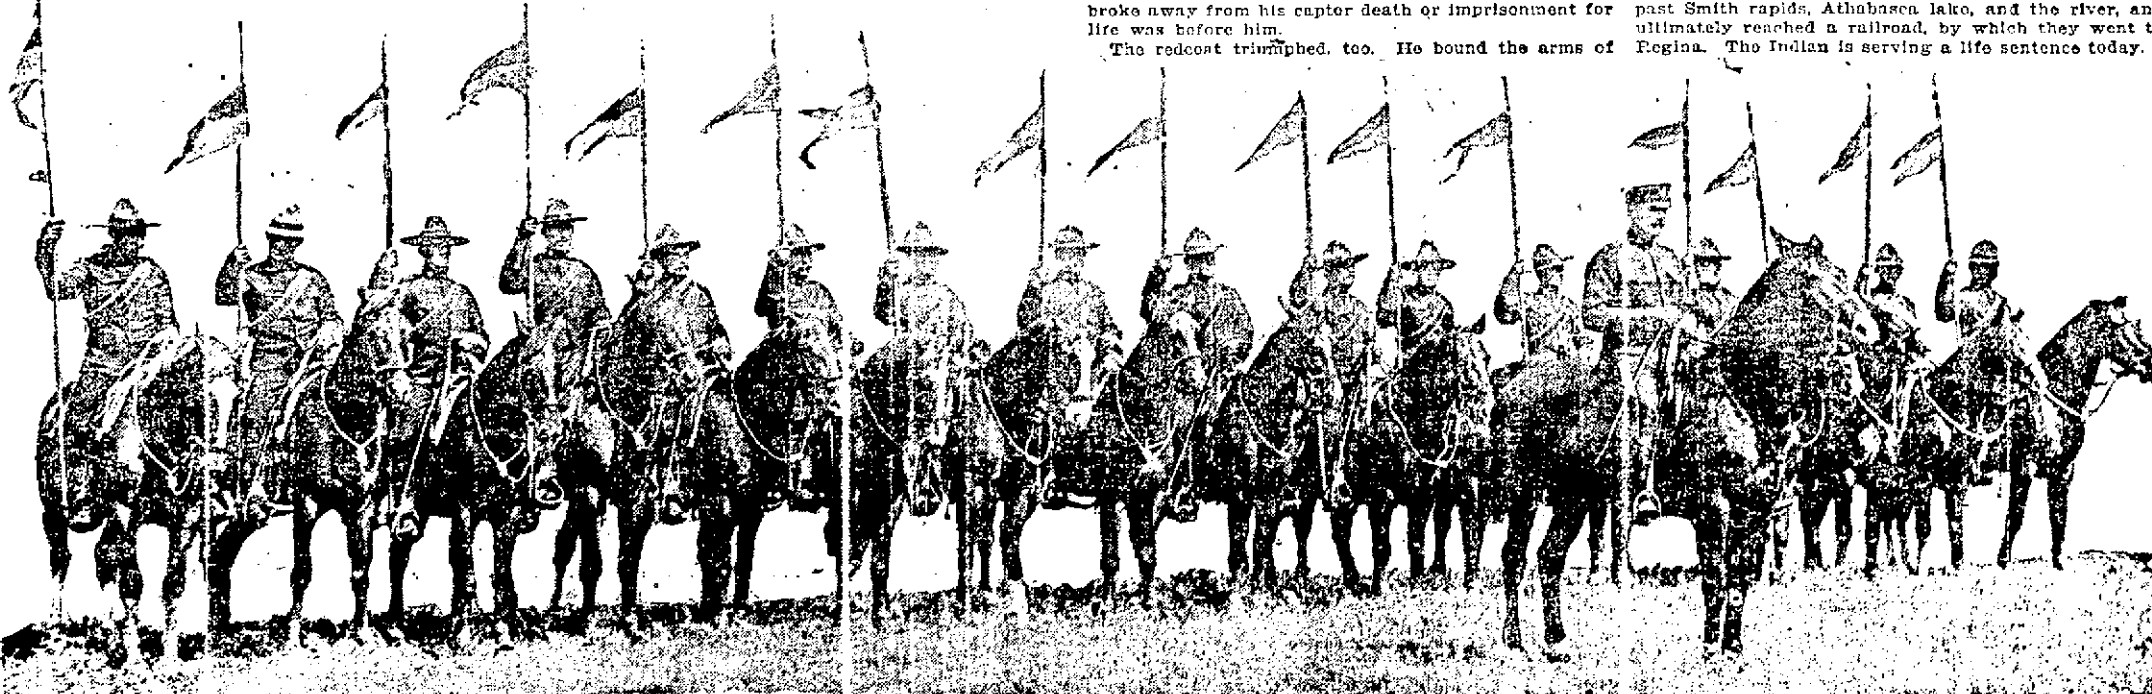

For this salary these men give up best years of their lives to adventure, to the wilderness, and to the king. The recruits represent every class found in the northwest colony, but "the lost legion of gentlemen rankers predominates, and it is Rugby and Cambridge out here on the unbroken prairies that set the fashion in muffs and manners," Miss Cameron says.

The doings of the troopers are recorded in the memories of the dwellers in the far land rather than in any official reports. Their duties are known—they do whatever they are told to do. But they are not given to verbosity in their reports and they have no publicity bureau. The blue book in which the government at Ottawa put out the year's data on the constables contains items after them in which, condensed into almost code-like brevity, are revealed skeletons of daring deeds and marvelous victories over all the forces of brute nature and more savage man.

The trooper reports the condition of crops, the state of the roads, the disposition of an Indian settlement under a new rule, the changes in the weather, prairie fires, and forest thefts. He reports pretty much everything an enlightened government wants to know. And he prepares these reports between long trips into the snow-covered north or on arctic seas. When wheat fields were scarcer than they are now in the northwest, and settlers lived in primitive huts, the troopers made the rounds of each house during the winters. They called to see that no one was frozen to death or left homeless by fire. They called to help the needy if food stores gave out or stock was lost. They were a bureau of charities, physician, minister, policeman, court, newspaper, parliament, all in one. Each trooper was the British empire incarnate.

This service to the settlers was so conspicuous a part of their duties that the country now filling up with towns able to care for their own local needs, it has been felt the trooper's usefulness is passing. He is retiring from the lower sections of his domain to a smaller region in the north.

As an officer of the law the police still is indispensable in the unsettled districts, where Indian and scattered adventurers are the sole inhabitants. The manner in which the troopers execute their mission there is illustrated by a few actual cases. In 1904 two prospectors from the United States entered the Lesser Slave lake country. Shortly afterward one dis-
